Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I do not want to pay more for my telephone service! I urge you to reject a flat fee proposal that would change how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund. I am concerned that this proposal could make my current service unaffordable.

Under the flat fee proposal you are considering, people who make few long distance calls would pay the same as people or businesses that make many calls. In other words, low-volume and primarily residential customers would bear the same universal service fund burden as a high-volume residential or business customers. This is unfair!

I use my wireless phone for safety, security and convenience. I don't want to lose these benefits so that big businesses can pay less than their fair share. I urge you to reject the proposal to move the USF collection system to a flat-fee.

I also have extremely high home phone bills right now. I feel I'm paying too much already. If my son wasn't in school and if I didn't feel I needed my phones incase of emergencies, I would probably cancel my phone. But I do have to have it and don't feel I should be penalized because big business wants a tax break--they can deduct their big phone bills at the end of the tax year as a business expense.

Keep the USF Fair!

Sincerely,

Sharai Bracken-Avery
